August 2005

All of the countries in the GMS have been working and achieving good results for the malaria control programmes. Some countries have started to introduced Long Lasting Insecticide Treated Bednets (LLITN) to community in remote areas. Some have further strengthen village malaria/health volunteers to deliver good control practice by using Rapid Diagnosis Test (RDT).

In this issue we would like to highlight some of Tachi, the village health volunteer, efforts to improve the malaria situation in his community. He is like many other village health/malaria volunteers that all the control programmes have been working with. They are the key players to sustain malaria prevention and control effort. We all need to increase their knowledge and strengthen their capacity to be able to deliver the best control measure in their communities.
